Holiday Caroling Charades — DateBox Club

House rules written for The Game Room from the publisher's own description of the game. This is not the publisher's rulebook; where the cards or the box say otherwise, they win.

The idea

Each card names a holiday carol or song. DateBox describes it as “if Taboo and Name That Tune had a baby”: easy to play, a bit competitive, for 2 to 8 players, and when you are done with charades you can play it again as a drawing game.

How to play (charades)

Split into two teams; with two players, take turns performing for each other. On your turn, draw a card and start the timer (a minute works well). Act out the song title without speaking while your team guesses. A correct guess wins the card; if time runs out, the card goes back under the deck. Teams alternate, and the team with the most cards after an agreed number of rounds wins.

Variations

Name That Tune: hum the melody, no words. Taboo: describe the song without saying any word from its title. Drawing: sketch clues instead of acting, with no letters or numbers. Mix them up by switching each round.
